State Representative Vincent Candelora

A New Session Begins—

And I Want to Hear From You

In just a few weeks, state representatives and senators will be heading back to Hartford for the start of the 2026 legislative session. It's a date that might not mean much on most calendars, but for those of us who represent you at the State Capitol, February 4th marks the start of three months of debates, decisions, and votes that will shape life here in Connecticut for years to come.

Before any of that begins, though, I want to take a moment to say something important: I need to hear from you. The truth is, no matter how many hours I spend reading bills, watching committee hearings, or talking with colleagues, nothing replaces hearing directly from the people I actually represent. You're the ones living with the consequences of the decisions made in Hartford. You see what's working and what isn't.

So, I'm asking—please visit my website (rep.candelora.com) and take a few minutes to share your thoughts. There's a brief survey there, and space to tell me what matters most to you heading into this session. You can also access the survey by using your smartphone to scan the QR code that accompanies this article. Whether it's something you'd like to see change, a problem you're dealing with, or just a general sense of where you think the General Assembly should be focusing its energy, I want to know.

On that front, the nonpartisan Office of Legislative Research recently released its 2026 Major Issues report—a document that outlines the big policy questions likely to color this session. It's worth a read if you're curious about what lawmakers will see as the baseline session agenda. Among the items included:

- DCF child welfare oversight
- No excuse absentee voting
- Police officer and firefighter retention and recruitment

I've also posted that Major Issues report on my website.

This session, as in the last few years, I'll be focused on issues tied to affordability:

- Increase the state's property tax credit
- Increase state aid for local education costs to ease the property tax burden
- Reduce or eliminate state fees, such as the Passport to Parks levy on our motor vehicle registrations
- Eliminate the state's 1 percent tax on prepared meals

These aren't abstract goals to me. They are achievable, and they're about making sure people can afford to stay in the communities they love, save for their kids' futures, sock away money for retirement, and not dread seeing their property tax bills.

The next few months will be busy because the time frame is compressed. While there is room to tackle a variety of other issues such as those described in the report, it is the "short" session—ending May 6—where the legislature's primary mission is to keep the second year of the two-year budget in balance. Expect to hear a lot of debate about how to use surplus dollars, whether paying down pension debt, expanding the state's social services programming, or delivering tax relief.

So, please reach out. Take the survey. Send me an email.

This is your government. Let's make sure it works for you.

Let's Be "Frank"

Well brother, this past weekend I took a couple of more trips. No it wasn't Europe. It wasn't Canada. It wasn't even Rhode Island. The first trip was from my family room into the dining room. I missed the step and crashed into the dining room hardwood floor.

I was able to get up with the help of SueAnn, get over to the chair and even get to the bathroom. But when I sat back down in the chair, my knee and my thigh blew up like a beach ball. Unable to walk we were forced to call 911. The gentleman they sent in the ambulance were first class and with a little sweat they were able to get me into the ambulance and to the hospital.

At the hospital, the ordeal started. First thing was "let's take x-rays to see if anything's broken". Fortunately, I drank a lot of milk as youngster, so my bones are pretty good and I have a lot of padding that also protects my bones. With nothing broken the next test were scans to check the vessels. Fortunately, the large vessels were intact, but the small vessels were bleeding, and added to the trauma, the swelling was not a good thing.

After two days of blood test every four hours, it was decided that the bleeding had stopped and I could start doing some exercises on the legs and with the help of a walker try to walk.

The nurses is at the hospital are A1. Those ladies and gentlemen are angels. They take grief all day and most of them do it with a smile. I try to joke with them and let them know how appreciated they are.

The food service on the other hand, is a complete joke and should be an embarrassment. A hospital with as much money as Yale should be ashamed of themselves. My first day it was to late to order lunch so they came up with a "diabetic lunch tray". The diabetic diet consisted of penne with red sauce, which was ice cold, lemonade, a brownie, and a roll. Are you following my drift yet?

The next day, I ordered a Caprese wrap with hot tea an a salad. The wrap came up on a bun, the salad was a Caesar salad with two soggy croutons and they gave me a fruit cup and a sugar-free lemon ice that wasn't sugar-free. I also was in the mood for tomato basil soup. The cup was only half filled, and the soup was cold.

On Sunday morning, I ordered from the dietitian who came in the room. I didn't want breakfast so for lunch I ordered a grilled chicken with a ginger, lemon tea and another one of those wonderful Caesars salad. When it didn't come at 1:30 and everybody on the floor had gotten theirs, I called and was told they deliver by floor. I said I know I'm on the floor. I know everybody got their dinner but me. She then told me it was in the nurses office, I already checked. It's not OK I'll send it up. She sent it up and then 15 minutes later she sent it up again. One was with cheese. One was without cheese. My tea was a black coffee. I didn't eat that meal either.

Finally, for dinner, I ordered pot roast. The pot roast was cold. The carrots were cold. The mashed potatoes were cold and powdered and for some reason she sent me up a container of low-fat milk which I didn't order and an apple juice which I didn't order she did get the banana right.

I hope when I get home, I weigh myself and I've lost weight cause I haven't eaten in four days number one because the food stinks number two because me and my size does not want to use a bad pan

My sugar which I have kept under control for the last two months is 300 every day when I'm not eating. They are giving me less than a 10th of the insulin that I take at home and they eliminated the two pills I take to go with that insulin when I'm home.

All in all, it wasn't a bad week to get hurt. There were a lot of football games on, and UCONN men's basketball game. There's a lot of snow out there which would have probably caused a fall anyway.

I did get to help a nurse out with our language. As she was trying to draw blood, before she put the needle in my arm, she warned "little prick". I told her she shouldn't have called me that. It took her a few minute to get it but she will now be warning with the words, "a little pinch".

So that's it for now. Take care and I'll see you soon.

Town of North Branford Office of Social Services

The Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays are now behind us, but the spirit of community generosity and thoughtfulness remains. There are many things in life we must do, things that we are required to do but the sincerity to care for our neighbors is not required although it is prevalent within this community.

Thank you to all the people that reached out without being solicited. People that called sincerely wishing to help another family. People that had the patience and endurance to work with me through voicemails, emails, busy signals, weekend and night calls, and the juggle.

Thank you for your kindness, generosity, and warm hearts. Truly a community composed of integrity and compassion. May you have a spectacular New Year! Stay well, stay safe.

Madison Hoop Dreams February Vacation days (Feb 16 & 17) Basketball Camps

Madison Hoop Dreams has arranged for use of the Robert H Brown School (890 Durham Rd Madison) for the Feb vacation days of Feb 16 and 17. The objective is to help every camper improve their skills and their enjoyment of basketball. They also see it as a service to parents who are working and want a structured, well supervised, fun camp that will promote good sportsmanship and positive social interaction. The camp is for players in grades 3 - 8 and is from 9 AM to 3 PM. Players are encouraged to register early to ensure a spot. Their limit is 60 campers and they will draw from over 15 towns. All of their programs are co-ed.

Each day starts with an hour of skill development. Then, campers will have fun participating in competitive basketball games for the remainder of the day. During the games, the coaches give instruction to help each player improve their knowledge and understanding of the game. This is an excellent opportunity for all players to improve their skills for the basketball season. In addition, they usually have an outstanding guest speaker to motivate the campers.

The cost is $60/day for the 6 hour camp. However, to encourage teams to attend, if there are 3 or
